Thruway State Police identified the men as John Robert Fox, 67, of Middletown, N. J., and Harry Pettit, 37, of Neptune,

State Trooper James Patterson entered the investigation after a Washington, D. C., man had difficulty with a trailer which was attached to his automobile and transporting a 12foot outboard motorboat. Troopers said the trailer became disabled on the Thruway north of Kingston interchange.

The owner detached the trailer and pulled it off the Thruway. Then he went for assistance. Meanwhile, the boat disappeared but the trailer was left by the alleged thieves. About three miles up the Thruway, Trooper Patterson spied two men later identified as Fox and Pettit loading the boat in a horse van.

Marshall Miles, author of the excellent book, "How to Win at Duplicate," gives this hand as an example of duplicate technique. In rubber bridge you simply win the opening lead in your own hand and make sure of nine tricks before gambling on a tenth. In duplicate you should try for a tenth. Marshall points out that the correct technique is to win the opening spade lead in dummy and drop the ten from your own hand.

Now you lead a diamond to your king. If East holds the ace of diamonds you make at least four odd and may make a lot if your concealed three of spades winds up as a winner
